PATTERSON GETS IN RACE FOR GOVERNOR AND ISSUES A CARD

Carmichael Also Files Notice Of Intention To Be Candidate

ANNOUNCEMENT OF INTEREST HERE

Friends Predict That Flattering Vote To Go To Patterson

Two North Alabamians now are in the race for governor of Alabama. Following closely on the heels of the announcement of A. H. Carmichael, of Tusculum, came the announcement of A. G. Patterson, president of the Alabama public service commission and former resident of Albany-Decatur.

Mr. Carmichael was a member of the legislature several times, having also served as speaker of the house on two occasions, while Mr. Patterson's only state office has been the one which he now is filling, the chairmanship of the public service commission.

In a statement to the people of Alabama, Mr. Patterson declared he would stress law enforcement as one of the primary planks of his platform. Other issues become of secondary importance when it is an issue of law versus lawlessness, he asserted.

Mr. Patterson entered state politics in 1920 when he ran against S. P. Kennedy for utility board president, defeating Mr. Kennedy by what was one of the biggest majorities ever given in a primary up to that time. Last year he again was renominated by the democratic party for the same position.

His formal announcement, filed with the secretary of state yesterday late, will cause much interest in this section which is expected to give Mr. Patterson a most flattering vote.

His statement follows: "It has been generally understood throughout the state for several months that I would become a candidate for governor. I had hoped that there would not be early official announcements and that the campaign might not be opened for several months. Long campaigns are inconvenient, expensive and a useless worry to the voters. I am advised that others are now actively campaigning, and in order that my candidacy may be legally and properly set forth, I have today filed with the secretary of state declaration of my candidacy, as required by law.

"There are several issues of great importance to the people of Alabama, which should be discussed and decided in the coming campaign. In an address delivered before the Alabama Traveling Men's annual convention at Tusculum on May 15, I discussed some of the more important of these issues, and stated my views thereon.

Would Check Crime Wave
"Since that address, conditions in Alabama and throughout the nation have served to emphasize the great importance of the enforcement of law, which is necessary for the protection of society and our institutions, and to check the great wave of crime and lawlessness which is now sweeping our state and nation. This, in my judgment, is the most important matter confronting our people today and should have that serious consideration which its importance demands. There are other issues of importance to the people, such as freedom of the state in its legislative and administrative departments from the domination or influence of selfish interests; increased appropriations for public education; taxation; state highway construction, adequate development of Alabama's seaport, etc.

"All these matters, however, are of secondary importance to the matter of the enforcement of the law and benefits to be derived from favorable action in regard to those important matters will be nullified unless there is maintained that supremacy of law (Continued on page two).

MOVE IS STARTED TO FIX ALABAMA

Committee Is Named to Confer On Opening Of Bridge Site

Move was started last night by the Albany council looking to the opening and improving of Alabama street, site of the new Tennessee river bridge.

The street committee of the council was named as a committee to confer with a similar committee of the Decatur council to discuss plans of the municipalities for carrying out the sense of the resolution, adopted by the two councils, pledging the cities to open and improve the thoroughfare.

A petition was received by the Albany council last night, signed by A. A. Hardage, F. F. Tidwell and B. E. Prentiss, asking that the council take some action, looking to the preparation of the preliminary plans for the improvement of Alabama.

Wyker Wins Eagle Honor Short Time

Billie Wyker, member of Decatur Troop 17 Boy Scouts is believed to be the youngest Eagle Scout in the state if not in the nation, according to Major Hal Long who is active in Scout happenings in this district. Major Long declared today that young Wyker went into the organization less than 60 days ago, immediately after his 12th birth anniversary and since that time has gained the highest scout honor. The young chap has passed the three major scout classes and has 21 merit badges, the requisite for becoming an Eagle Scout.

Third Gasoline Cut In Week Announced

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Aug. 22—The third cut within a week in the price of gasoline was announced today by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey with a cut of one half cent. The reduction brings the price to 15 1-2 cents a gallon carload lots and that of U. S. Navy gasoline to 14 cents. Export kerosene was cut a fourth of a cent.

GIANT TURBINES AT SHOALS TURNS OVER FOR THE FIRST TIME

Without Celebration the Test Is Made At Wilson Dam

PEOPLES DREAM IS NOW REALIZED

Other Great Engines Will Operate In a Short Time

(Associated Press)

FLORENCE, Ala., August 22.—Tennessee river for the first time in its history today was producing electric energy.

Without celebration the first generating unit, a small auxiliary turbine, in the largest electric plant in the world, that at Wilson dam, was put to work yesterday when water was turned into the pen stock of the 750-horsepower wheel.

The function is to provide power for the operation of the dam itself, such as to run machinery, cranes, elevators and water gauges.

Machinery was carefully inspected before the pen stock was opened. Adjustments were made of the eight major turbines that will mean the realization of the dreams of this section.

Major Mac C. Taylor, commanding officer at the dam, expects to put the turbines to work next week, or as soon thereafter as the river rises again. This is expected to be before September 1.

The Alabama Power company has already completed construction of transmission lines to the dam.

Barnes To Speak At Council Meeting

PLANS FOR SECOND AVE. IMPROVEMENT TALKED BY COUNCIL

One Bid Is Received For Resurfacing The Present Paving

COUNCIL SEEKS OWNERS' ADVICE

Those Having Property On Avenue Will Be Asked About Plans

The Albany city council Friday evening devoted much time to a discussion of improving the condition of Second avenue and after receiving a bid for resurfacing the street, indicated that if the property owners desire the work, that the street probably will be paved again, concrete or asphalt with a concrete base being used in the construction.

The Independent Paving company submitted a bid for resurfacing the street, the plan being to smooth out the present paving and use the bricks as a foundation for a new top. The bid was for $13,500.

It was brought out during the discussion by the council that many were of the opinion that if the city used the present material for resurfacing or repaving work, that the city would have to stand the cost of the work, the property owners already having paid for the present paving.

On the other hand it was stated that if the city decided to build an entirely new street, that the cost of the work could be assessed against the property owners along the thoroughfare so improved.

No definite action was taken on the matter, it being left over until the next meeting. In the meantime members of the council desired to talk over the paving question with owners of property on the principal business street and get their opinion as to what character of street improvement would suit them best.

Revival To Begin At Town Creek

Rev. E. Floyd Olive, pastor of South Side Baptist church returned from Florence last night to officiate in the wedding of Mr. John Wilks and Miss Anna Tidwell this morning.

The revival services which Rev. Olive has been conducting at Central church, Florence, will close Sunday night, and he will do the preaching, beginning Monday afternoon, in a Union Revival meeting at Town Creek, the Baptist and M. E. pastors and their churches being unanimous in their choice of him to lead them. Rev. A. R. Prosser will supply the pulpit of South Side tomorrow, but the pastor expects to be with them next Sunday morning, August 30th.

M'CULLOCH GIVEN CONTRACT TO BUILD LEE STREET SEWER

Bid For Construction Of Line Accepted By Albany Board

ROUTINE AFFAIRS ARE TAKEN UP

Bid Accepted to Finish Paving Of Pair Of Thoroughfares

The bid of W. B. McCulloch for construction of the new storm sewer on Lee street was accepted last night by the Albany city council, in regular session, Mr. McCulloch's bid totaling $5,603.25.

The council also named as a committee Mayor Carswell, City Engineer Bingham and City Attorney Chenault, to consult with the Decatur officials in regard to the arrangement for connecting the new Albany sewer with the Decatur sewer underneath the railroad tracks of the Louisville and Nashville.

The construction of the new storm sewer in the Lee street vicinity is expected to alleviate the condition which here-to-for have existed in that section when rainfall is heavy. Due to the fact that a large territory of paved streets drain into Lee near the intersection of Lee and Perry streets and Second avenue, water accumulates so rapidly thereabouts disposal has been an acute municipal problem and one which has worried city officials for years.

A large amount of routine business was transacted by the council last night.

The Independent Paving company's bid of $743.50 was accepted for finishing the paving on Second avenue between Sherman street and Prospect Drive and the paving on Prospect Drive.

The Southeastern Express company petitioned the council for a reduction in license, but the petition was denied at this time.

City Engineer Bingham was instructed to prepare an ordinance, providing for the construction of a cement sidewalk on First avenue, between the plant of the Decatur Gornice and roofing company and Moulton street.

Alderman Sivley asked the city attorney to prepare an ordinance, requiring persons who open streets, restore the thoroughfare to their original condition.

Dealers in hides were instructed to unload goods in the rear of their establishments, instead of the front. A petition for a street light at the intersection of Market and Forest streets was referred to the light committee.

The city agreed on the purchase of certificates totalling $19,000 in the Investors Syndicate, to provide funds for retirement of the principal and interest on the $50,000 bridge bond issue.

MURDER SUSPECT LEAPS TO DEATH

Alleged Slayer Of His Wife Jumps From Hospital Window

(Associated Press)

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Aug. 22—Scotty Allison, indicted yesterday on a charge of murder in connection with the death of his wife, Mrs. Mary C. Allison, killed himself today by leaping from the third story window of a hospital where he was recovering from self-inflicted knife wounds.

Allison leaped from the window when a policeman stepped from the room into a hallway in compliance with Allison's request for the summoning of a nurse. His neck was broken in the fall.

Allison was found unconscious in his cell at the county jail Thursday night with his throat and arms slashed and was taken to the hospital where he made his second and successful attempt to end his life.

Mrs. Allison was shot to death at her home Monday night.

Ruby Jewell Pemberton, eight year old stepdaughter of Allison was struck by a stray bullet and severely wounded.

Notes found in the jail after Allison first attempted to kill himself, directed his attorney to notify a nephew, Dave Dalton, in New Hope, Ala., and named persons he believed responsible for his estrangement from his wife and the subsequent tragedy.

Allison was employed here as a carpenter.

DONATION MADE

Tennessee River At Lowest Stage In Half Century

The Tennessee River now is at its lowest stage in fifty years, according to W. A. Brown, prominent Decatur citizen and long an observer of the river, its high stages and its low, and a frequent user of the stream.

"I had my motor boat up the river about three miles," Mr. Brown said today, "and was surprised that for long distances its frequently touched bottom, and the boat only draws about 18 inches."

Mr. Brown stated that at a point three miles up from here, it would be possible to walk across the stream, without getting out of depth little more than the height of a man's knee.

PRUDENCE'S DAUGHTER

—By—
ETHEL HUESTON

In the past and countless hopes for Prudence and Jerry in the future, the telegram came to announce their returning, and Jerrold said regretfully: "Sorry, old fellow, I've got to chuck you out. The girls will be home this evening."

Duane's disappointment and his regret at leaving were almost childlike. In the intimacy of Jerry's home he had almost forgotten their estrangement and felt she should be coming to him as Prudence came back to Jerrold.

"I wonder what would happen if I just stuck on and faced the music," he said to Jerrold, "as if I had a right to be here."

"Oh, good lord," was all Jerry's father had to say.

So Duane packed his bags bitterly, unhappily, and moved back to the sort of stupidity of his hotel room.

Jerrold spent the rest of the day going through the house, removing every trace of evidence as to the presence of a guest. He cautioned the maids, over and over, to breathe not a word of what had transpired, and in the evening met his wife and daughter at the station.

In deference to the returning of Prudence, he generously removed the bronze smoking stand from the side of the bed and put it back in the stairway lounge where she had left it. He always made that concession on the night that Prudence returned. And Prudence in gratitude for his generosity, always carried it back when they went to bed, and put it where his hand could not fail to find it the moment he should awaken.

He kissed Prudence first, kissed her twice. Then he turned to Jerry. Jerry always surprised him. She took hold of both of his arms, and looked deep into his eyes, her own unsmiling, pleading, anxious. Jerrold met them bravely, although his heart sank guiltily beneath the weight on his conscience. He wondered if he bore a mark engraved upon his features that her lynx-bright eyes could read and understand.

But Jerry said nothing. She released her tense grip upon his arms after a moment, and blessed him.

CHAPTER VIII

Between Friends

During the dinner hour on an early evening in November Jerry was called to the telephone, and when she came back a moment later to her place there was a curious, quizzical smile upon her lips and in her eyes.

"It was Adela Longley," she explained. "She wanted me to go to the theater with her."

"Adela Longley?" Prudence was gently surprised.

"Are you going?" asked Jerrold, with his usual lack of inter-penetration.

"It was Adela Longley," Jerry repeated, for his enlightenment. "Of course I am not going. I told her I am very busy tonight."

Jerry and her mother exchanged glances of smiling tolerance—tolerance for Jerrold's manifold incomprehension of delicate social situations, smiling because they loved him. For from New York down, the veriest hawker has his central select set which seems a thing of merest idle chance, and yet the laws of the Medes and Persians themselves were not a whit more binding.

Adela Longley was one who hovered as it were in the remote whorls of that society which circled about Jerry as a point of pivot. She belonged to the large social life of Des Moines, but was not, and could not be, a part of that inner nucleus which is so rigidly a thing apart. And yet Jerry was the very soul of democracy; she said she abhorred snobishness of all things in the world; she made no slightest distinction as to place or person—only as to personality. She didn't care for Adela Longley. "Oh, she's a different sort, very nice of course—I don't care about her." It was Adela, Jerry felt, who kept Adela in the social fringe.

"Maybe she thinks if she gets a little clubby with you I may give her a better price on a car," suggested Jerrold, always glad to help out with his opinion.

Jerry was interested. "A car? Another car? Why, she has a car now!" "She's tired of it. She wants to trade it in on a Harmer. She has been in three times this week to see about it."

Jerry lowered the misty lashes reflectively. Only Jerry knew how very strange a thing that was. She was not above sounding her father for confirmation of her suspicion.

"She has a Harkness! It cost nearly five thousand dollars more than mine."

"Yes, she said she would have nothing but a Harkness in the beginning, but she doesn't like it now she has it. She wants to trade it in for a Harmer roadster like yours."

"Like mine! But you had mine made specially for me, and I designed—"

"Yes, I know," Duane told her—

"Who told her?"

"Oh—Mr. Allerton, you know, Duane Allerton. He is on the floor, you see. He showed her the models, and she's been talking to him about it."

"Oh, I see," Jerry had her confirmation. "Well, go on. What did he tell her?"

"He said we will not duplicate the body of your car for anybody, but that we will design another special for her, any style she likes. But we do not care to duplicate yours under any circumstances."

"Adela Longley made fun of the Harmer when she got her," said Jerry reflectively. "She said she wanted a good car or none at all. The girls used to tease me about it."

"Well, maybe she thinks more of it

Women Are Held As Blackmailers

(Associated Press)
FREEHOLD, N. J., Aug. 22.—Three women, one of whom is claimed to be a member of the former Russian nobility, were held in $10,000 bail each today on charges of conspiracy and attempt to blackmail against Max Phillips, millionaire official of the Van Hosen Collar company.

The arrests were made after county detectives had secreted themselves in Phillips home, at Eatontown last night at his request and had listened to the women's conversation by means of a dictaphone.

The prisoners gave their names as Beatrice Johnston, Florence, Italy, Hattie Hager of New York and Anita Berg, who claims she was the Countess Del Y Burky, of Petrograd.

A man giving his name as Berg, claiming to be the Countess' husband was held in $5,000 bail for carrying concealed weapons.

Police said that Berg was arrested after he had attempted to aid the women in escaping.

Mr. Phillips, who met Miss Johnston sometime ago, reported to Prosecutor Quinn that he feared a blackmailing attempt. On the prosecutor's suggestion Mr. Phillips invited Miss Johnston and her friend, the Countess to a dinner party at his home.

George Anderson, Mr. Phillips' secretary, also attended.

Detectives and a stenographer were hidden in the cellar and with the dictaphone took down the dinner conversation, which had chiefly to do with a proposed yachting trip scheduled for tomorrow. At midnight the detectives entered the dining room and made the arrest.

The women were permitted to go to their hotel in Seabright to change their clothes. It was here that Berg, who said he was a private detective was arrested as he sought to bar the doors to the officers. Miss Hager was arrested in Jersey City as an accomplice. Her role, police said, was that of a maid.

Prosecutor Quinn asserted that the gang had been sought for sometime for playing in wealthy residents' of the New Jersey coast. Miss Hager and the Countess, he said, confessed their share in the conspiracy.

Mr. Phillips was divorced seven years ago.

ADVERTISING CLUBS ARE TOLD OF VALUE OF NEWSPAPER PUBLICITY

Newspapers, themselves believing in advertising, have not been slow to attempt to sell themselves to the advertising buying public as the best means of marketing the advertisers goods. Yet, in all of the claims that have been made for newspapers, few approach the claim made for the value of newspaper publicity put forward by Lee Flemming, sales manager of the Flyer Garment company, in an address before the Advertising Clubs of the United States.

Mr. Flemming declares that advertising has increased the sales of his company 500 per cent, but "the newspaper, we have found, is the great selling medium," he continues.

Mr. Flemming is an advertising expert. Studying advertising is his business, the same as studying the cotton market is the business of a cotton broker, crop conditions, markets, stocks and bonds of the banker, or the steel market of a furnace operator. Mr. Flemming is speaking from his own varied experience when he says:

"The newspaper, we have found, is the great selling medium. When we want to increase sales in any territory and increase them quickly, a newspaper campaign in that locality, without exception, will move the goods from the dealers shelves and create a demand for our product in stores of the dealers not stocking our brand."

"When we wanted additional dealers in a territory, a newspaper advertising schedule in the hands of the salesmen invariably added the new dealers."

"There is as much difference in the results from different advertising mediums as there is difference in the mediums themselves. In advertising our overalls we use newspapers, magazines, painted bulletins and signs. A check over a period of years has taught us what to expect from each type of medium and in most instances they run true to form year after year."

"Farm papers build a substantial background for our product. It is a slow process as the farmer is not a person to be easily influenced. Our experience has convinced us that the greatest value to be had from farm papers is a continuous campaign over a long period."

"Magazines bring more inquiries and creates a confidence and dignity for the product. Painted bulletins are a reminder that ties the advertising to the local dealer and are of value in keeping the public familiar with the brand."

"But the very nature of a daily newspaper is favorable to creating immediate sales. The fact that a newspaper is born and dies today, and tomorrow an entirely new one comes into existence creates the thought of action in the reader's mind. The opportunity is present. It may be gone tomorrow, and creating the psychology of action is the most important of the four steps to a sale: Attention, Interest, Desire, and Action."

"In newspaper advertising there is the same opportunity afforded by the other mediums to get attention, interest and desire, with the added advantage of creating the thought of action."

for a month. That is the reader's impression. The same a true of bulletins and signs, there is a permanency in connection with them that does not suggest immediate buying.

"The daily newspaper gives the thought of action without stating it. The paper is published today amid a rush and hurry. Tomorrow it is gone. Today's news is stale tomorrow and yesterday's opportunities are gone today. The buyer has learned to read today's newspaper to find today's buying opportunities. Daily newspapers are the greatest action getting mediums on earth. When we want to sell our goods and sell now; we use the daily newspapers."

TUBERCULOSIS PREVENTABLE AND THE DEATH RATE IS MUCH TOO HIGH

In the current issue of The Southern Labor Review where appears an article by Dr. L. R. Murphree, at present health officer of Lawrence county and soon to become health officer of Limestone, in which Dr. Murphree says a good word for the work of the health department of the state.

The article deals primarily with tuberculosis. It long has been known that tuberculosis, with proper care, can be made preventable. Frequently it is curable, as well. Therefore, Dr. Murphree's statement that the annual death rate from this disease alone remains at close to 1,000 is sufficient cause for wonderment on the part of all. More than 40,000 persons are believed to have this disease, and one-tenth of them pass on every year. These figures should cause us to stop and think. Unfortunately thinking on problems of this nature is the very thing we do entirely too rarely.

Dr. Murphree writes:

"The annual death rate from tuberculosis in Alabama stays pretty close around 4,000. At least 40,000 others have the disease. Tuberculosis kills one-third of all those who die between the ages of 18 and 45 in the United States. There is scarcely any alarm about this premature snuffing out of 4,000 useful lives by a disease that is both preventable and curable. There would be a great deal more excitement over a single case of yellow fever or plague. This is because every one is accustomed to the presence of tuberculosis, so accustomed indeed, that precautions known to be effective in preventing it are adopted with great reluctance and abandoned soon after."

It is the natural ambition of the health department to inform and get other enthusiastic that every available means of disease prevention shall become effective in stamping out this and other preventable disease.

Now just a few things as to prevention; there are two methods of preventing tuberculosis. One is to kill all the germs in the sputum and discharges from consumptive patients before they can do harm and the other is to keep physically fit by regular physical examination, by having the right kind and quality of food, sufficient exercise and rest, fresh air and sunshine.

Consult your doctor if you think you have tuberculosis or if you are not getting along so well. If you find out you have tuberculosis, stop work if possible. Keep cheerful, remember happiness is essential to recovery from tuberculosis. Do not worry, put up a hard fight and get well.

Consumption can be cured by treatment in the early stages of the disease by avoiding excess of alcoholic drinks, sleeping and living in the open air, eating nourishing food and by following the advice of your physician.

Bringing Dr. Murphree's general conclusions a little nearer home, here in Morgan county, the health unit is preparing, by chart, a map of every case of tuberculosis and every contact in this county. These cases are watched and helped. If the public lends its cooperation to the department in this campaign, the time will come when tuberculosis will cease to take its heavy toll of our citizens every year.

The department is doing everything within its power. What success crowns its efforts depends, to a very large extent, on the citizens of Morgan county.

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS for the Sabbath and Other Days

BY J. E. BLAIR

There were two dogs known to the writer in the days of his extreme youth. One was named "Mack" and the other "Gip." Mack was the more intellectual of the two—for example, he would chase his own tail at your bidding. Mack was white tipped with black. Gip was yellow (but in color only). He knew no tricks, but of mornings he would meet his master with a genuine smile and wag his tail joyously. What joy the yellow dog brought when we were in the woods, at the call of his master. Gip came the long distance to us from the house of my grandfather—as we would hear his swift feet on the hard path way along the lane—and how glad we were when he bounded into our presence ready to "tree" the squirrel or chase the rabbit! Gip was a thing of beauty and a joy forever! Not so with poor Mack! He was beautiful in appearance, but he had been spoiled! It was with ugly growls he would chase his tail; and lest he would have to do a similar bidding, Mack would hurry under the house, growling as he went. We children established no personal relations with Mack. And sad to say he died at the gluttonous task of trying to swallow a piece of gristle! There were tears shed when Mack died; but when Gip passed away there was such a weeping as Rachel's when that good woman of the Bible, wept for her children "and refused to be comforted!"

It would be much "nicer" and much more "liferary" to draw no "morals" from the lives of the two dogs. It is really a bore to "preach" and to be "preached to." However, the Good Book intimates that if we spake the rod, we spoil the child—if we teach none of life's lessons, how can they be learned!

So however unpleasant it may be to hear a few morals drawn from the lives of Mack and Gip, let us say that Mack died as he had lived, seeking to satisfy himself. He was unpleasant and he was doubtless unhappy. He chased no squirrels nor rabbits!

The way of Gip's death is unknown—his grave is as unknown as that of Great Moses. But in life Gip took pleasure in doing the will of his friends! (We will not say "the will of his master"—on the same principle that the Savior once refused to call His followers "Servants," rather referring to them as "Friends.") Gip radiated sunshine—he had a real "sunshine smile." He brought in "game" and was therefore a great help in providing for his keep. Gip pulled his own weight! Do we? Or are we as mill-stones hung about the neck of the world! Can we afford the "sunshine smile" as Gip did? Do we go bounding forth at the call of the Master? Can we be said to be "How beautiful are the feet of those "day's swim" with a heavy meal, often following it up with a heavy luncheon, hastily swallowed.

And they spent the day with their stomachs fighting the brain as to which shall have the blood supply on which brain and stomach depend for their work. E. H. Harriman and Jay Gould killed themselves by foolish eating.

WHEN a horse is to race they take away his hay the night and morning before the race.

If our able men treated themselves as intelligently as trainers treat race horses they would produce twice as much and live twice as long.

WASHINGTON takes it for granted that France will receive treatment less favorable than that accorded to Belgium in her debt settlement.

Regardless of the fact that her resources are greater than Belgium's, France should be treated by this nation as a favored creditor, even more favorably than Belgium or any other nation.

THE United States owes a gigantic debt to France, and that doesn't refer to the unimportant gesture of Lafayette, who remained quiet and invisible in his own country's revolution.

It refers to the great Frenchman of the 18th century, whose writings inspired and guided our ablest men, including Jefferson and Franklin. What they knew they learned from France, and to France this country owed its revolution.

LEARNED men including churchmen once taught that there was a roof to this earth, solid, held up by its own strength and called the sky.

When Galileo denied it and said the earth was a round ball whirling around the sun, he had to get down on his knees saying that he "retracted, abjured and abhorred his false teachings—which happened to be perfectly true."

THE IDEA of a solid sky above us, with stars planted in it here and there faded out. But now the radio experts of the navy say the earth actually has a "roof" of another kind. It exists, presumably, where our thin atmosphere melts away into the ether, "an ionized region in the higher levels of the atmosphere," the scientists call it.

THE "imponderable ether," so dense that solid steel in comparison is like a coarse fish net, certainly does enclose our earth and its thin atmosphere.

Radio waves such as we use may not be able to travel outside that atmosphere. If so, science will find some other wave that will take messages to other planets.

If light producing waves can travel from the sun to the earth, men will find some ways that will carry information from the earth to the sun and beyond.

THE United States will send their sea planes manned by fifteen men to fly, in one "hop" from California to Hawaii.

This country should have been long ago beyond the experimental "hop" stage, with regular flying service from Hawaii to the continent and from Hawaii to the Philippines.

If this country doesn't learn to fly westward across the Pacific, plenty of these now living will see Asiatic flying boats coming the other way.

THEY haven't exactly got freedom of the press in Cuba as yet—at least, not freedom for editors, except in the poetical sense.

In that sense the late editor Alvarado of the Havana El Dia is free.

He criticised Machado's government. On Tuesday his two papers were suspended by government order. Early yesterday morning Editor Alvarado was shot dead.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON ROK CLUB

The members of the Friday Afternoon Rook Club were delightfully entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Andy Ellner at her bungalow on Gordon Drive East. For this occasion the home was beautifully decorated with early fall flowers. Mrs. J. L. Broadway was awarded the prize for high score, and Mrs. Rufus Warren received the booby prize. A delicious plate lunch was served the players who were later invited to the lawn to enjoy iced melon. Those present were Mesdames Earl Riggs, D. K. Wiggins, Eldon Smith, Fred Sheets, Rufus Warren, Louis Broadway, Jack Pirtle and Miss Louise Ellner. The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Earl Riggs at her home on Fourth avenue West.

WILKS TIDWELL

The marriage of Miss Anna Tidwell to Mr. John Wilks was quietly solemnized this morning at 9 o'clock at the ladies parlor of the Central Baptist church. The young people were attended by Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Clements. Mrs. Clements wearing a beautiful frock of Mountain-haze flat crepe with hat to match. The bride's costume was an exclusive fall model of tan georgette over pink satin with hat to match and blond accessories. Rev. E. Floyd Olive officiated, using the ring ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Wilks left immediately for a trip south after which they will be at home at 523 Jackson street.

Misses Ethel and Norma Wilks will be week-end guests of friends in Birmingham.

Mrs. George Wells left yesterday for Nashville, Tenn., having been called by the death of her brother, Mr. Will Parsons.

Huntsville Woman Is Killed In Wreck

(Associated Press)

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Mrs. T. A. Hanna, of Birmingham, Ala., was instantly killed here late yesterday when a heavy sedan in which she was riding skidded on a pavement and struck a telephone pole.

She was accompanied by her husband, T. A. Hanna and by Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Webster also of Birmingham.

It was reported by an eye witness that the car was being driven at a rate of speed estimated to be 25 miles an hour when it skidded, the rear wheels leaving the pavement. No others were injured. The party was making a tour of the state and was enroute to Birmingham.

Mrs. Hanna was a native of Huntsville.

INABILITY TO SLEEP IS A SIGN OF AGING

A Hobby Makes One Relax or Play, and That Opens the Way for a Refreshing of the Body. Staving Off Old Age.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

These same foods taken into the body are capable of spoiling and creating trouble. Unless they are acted upon speedily by the digestive and assimilative processes, they may become poisons to the body, or else degenerate into material suitable for germ breeding.

The poisons or toxins produced in this way are sometimes stimulating to the nervous system. They set the heart to pounding, or act in some manner which drives sleep from the brain and eyes.

No matter what causes the sleeplessness, the loss of the refreshment given by sleep hastens the breakdown we call "aging." It lowers the vitality and lessens the resistance to disease.

Many persons have forgotten how to play. Or if they do play, their sports are as intensive and compelling as their work. Everybody needs real relaxation. The nervous system wants a rest from the stress and strain of life.

This is where the value of the hobby is established. A friend told me that during the World War King George took two or three hours every week to putter with his stamp collection. This is a keen pleasure to him and I have no doubt it did much to keep him fit during the soul-trying years of the war. Everybody should cultivate a hobby. Whether it is blooded cattle or old bottles, it doesn't matter. Just now I asked a friend if she had a hobby. She seemed dazed at the question. She has no hobby and that creates a void in her life. She should have a hobby. So should you. It will help to keep you young.

I am thinking what a lot of letters this article will bring me. Many of them will say this theory is all nonsense—that life is too serious to waste.

Answers to Health Queries

READER Q.—Should enlarged tonsils be removed.

A.—No. They should not be removed simply because they are enlarged, but if, in addition, they are diseased, they should be taken out to the advantage of the general health.

M. M. D. Q.—What is the best thing to do for red eyelids?

A.—Apply 1% yellow oxide of mercury ointment to the lids before bedtime. This should give relief.

Red Rountree Will Handle Y. M. C. A. Grid Candidates, Opening Practice Monday

Walter "Red" Rountree, a Vandy star will handle the Y. M. C. A. gridiron candidates beginning Monday afternoon at the old Cooper-Wells field. Mr. Rountree has consented to help the Y with preliminary training prior to his return to Vanderbilt where he will resume his medical studies. All candidates have been notified to report at the field near 4 o'clock Monday.

Secretary Randolph of the Y. M. C. A. agreed in a committee meeting Friday night to purchase new equipment, furnishing uniforms to two full eleven. Mr. Randolph declared that the Y is backing the Louisville and Nashville team this year to the full extent and that he looks forward to a successful season.

S. E. Arvidson, manager of athletics is working daily now preparing one of the toughest schedules ever handled by a local team. He has closed games with Howard College Reserves, to be played here in October, Sewanee Reserves to be played at Sewanee and with Morgan Presbytery school to be played at Petersburg. Games are pending with Falkville, Florence Normal, Huntsville College Blountsville Aggies, Massey Military and with an Independent aggregation from Louisville and L. & N. organization. As matters now stand, the local team will play a schedule starting the first week in October and extending through Thanksgiving day. Five will be played on the home lot and three out of town.

Candidates who have notified the team management that they expect to be out Monday are, for the backfield, McRee, Gustin, Grasmell, McAbee, Johnson and possibly Free. Line candidates are Elison, Walker, Byers, Tomber 1, and possibly Holden and Watson, Speer, Dunaway, Shelton, Orr. Uniforms will not be issued until the second or third week of practice, preliminary training will be done in light workouts, passing, punting and general conditioning.

HERE IT IS! $500 IN CASH and many other prizes of IRON CLAD HOSIERY given for creating the best puzzles on the cross word design herewith according to the following rules.

Now is the time to get busy and win a prize

Just look over this design. It is as easy to work as it appears. However, before you start to work read carefully the contest rules below.

We would suggest that you make a list of all words describing or pertaining to Hosiery before you start. Then fill in with just as many of these words as you possibly can. Send in as many solutions as you desire—the more you send the more chances you have of winning a prize.

Contest Rules:

NO. 1—The IRON CLAD Cross Word Puzzle School Sale Contest is open to everyone, except IRON CLAD Dealers and Cooper Wells & Company and the employees and families of both.

NO. 2—A total of 96 CASH PRIZES will be awarded Nationally, divided as follows: 1st Prize, $100.00; 2nd Prize, $75.00; 3rd Prize, $50.00; 4th Prize, $35.00; 5th Prize, $25.00; and 6th Prize, $15.00. The next five best solutions will each receive $10.00; the next ten best solutions will each receive $5.00; the next twenty-five best solutions each will receive $2.00, and the next fifty will be awarded $1.00 each. The best solution sent through each store listed in this advertisement will receive a box of IRON CLAD Hosiery for Men, Women or Children, according to the contestant. The next five best solutions will each receive a pair of IRON CLADS, their choice of stock.

NO. 3—No solutions will be eligible except those worked out on the design furnished in connection with this contest.

NO. 4—To be a Prize Winner a solution must contain the three words "IRON CLAD HOSIERY" at least once. Adjectives and other words used in connection with Hosiery should be used wherever possible, as awards will be made in greater part upon that basis. As many solutions may be sent in as you desire.

NO. 5—Your solutions should be written in a neat and legible manner.

NO. 6—The design MUST BE FILLED IN with your words. These words must also be numbered and listed below with the definitions for each. Use a plain white sheet for this purpose, pasting the design in the upper RIGHT HAND CORNER of the page. Write or print neatly, in the upper left hand corner, your name and address, and the name and address of the merchant through whom your solutions are sent. Use ONLY ONE SIDE OF A SHEET.

NO. 7—All puzzles submitted become the property of Cooper Wells & Co., and will not be returned to the owners. It is understood these solutions may be used in any manner Cooper Wells & Co. may see fit without remuneration other than the prize awards.

NO. 8—The judges of this Contest have been selected by Cooper Wells & Co., and are prominent citizens of St. Joseph, Michigan. They are Dr. L. A. King, Mayor of St. Joseph; E. P. Clarke, Supt. of Schools, and E. A. Gast, Postmaster.

NO. 9—The IRON CLAD Cross Word Puzzle Contest will officially open on Saturday, August 22nd and close when these stores close Saturday, September 5th. All solutions must be turned in by that time.

NO. 10—Only solutions sent through IRON CLAD dealers will be eligible for the IRON CLAD Cross Word Puzzle Contest.

NO. 11—All prize awards will be announced through dealers in about four or six weeks. The winning answers will be upon display at that time.
